We are God's handiwork, you are God's handiwork. You are what He has made you to be. So what is there left to do? Follow the invitation of God and do it out of your belonging to God and your calling. Don't be afraid- God is calling you to be who you are uniquely meant to be. You are what He made you to be after all. You are the product of His hand, heaven's poetry etched on your life, created in the Anointed, Jesus, to accomplish the good works God arranged long ago. As we reflect on these words inspired by Ephesians 2:10 we invite you to follow God's invitation to join Him.

Perhaps this is your first time committing your life to Him and today would mark the first day journeying through life with Jesus.

Perhaps you have been a follower of Jesus for a while and today is a day for you for you to re-commit your life to Him.

Perhaps this is a time for you to take that next step in what God is asking you to do with your life, volunteering your time here at church, reaching out to a friend, ministering to someone who needs your support.

For those who are soldiers and officers, this time could be for you to recommit yourselves to the covenants you signed.

Is this the day that you take that next step in exploring further His call to full time vocational ministry in the Salvation Army?

The invitation is there for you to come forward and take a card. Reflect on what you have heard from God and follow His invitation to you today.
