

Even though we're working together to make CHRIST-centred, OTHERS-focused disciples, we recognize that every corps and ministry unit has a unique context, and that programming will not necessarily look the same in every setting.

That's why the @theREADY Discipleship Framework is designed to provide you with a vast catalogue of resources—to allow you to start where you need to, based on the realities of your setting. In this way, @theREADY will enable flexibility in programming while promoting consistency in our teaching and training.

NAVIGATING ORANGE

Even within the consistency of resources and curriculum for teaching and training, ORANGE provides a wide range of choice and flexibility of how it can be implemented in whatever program it best fits in your setting.

This means you'll want to familiarize yourself with how ORANGE is delivered online, and with the many folders and documents available to you.

Once you know what's what, and where what you need/want is located, we're confident that you will find ORANGE as easy, if not easier, to use than other curriculum you are currently familiar with.

Watch this brief tour of the ORANGE folder structure and how to find your way around in order to download what you need for your ministry:

ACCESSING YOUR CONTENT

We know that every group is unique.

You'll find multiple options of activities you can choose from in the First Look (preschool) and 252 (elementary/preteen) curriculums to customize the approach you take with your kids to help them process and apply bottom line truths.

Remember, you don't have to use ORANGE as is, or use every idea and suggestion in your material—use what works best for your group.

NAVIGATING ORANGE

In junior high and high school, XP3 curriculum encourages leaders to facilitate directed discussion to help their students wrestle through what bottom line truths look like lived out.

But we, and ORANGE, also know that some groups will want to have their students explore God's Word themselves, allowing what they find to guide their discussions.

That's where XP3 Expansion Packs come in:

XP3 EXPANSION PACKS

Additionally, we'll be adding our own red and yellow mix—our “Blood and Fire” DNA—to embed what we are calling Deeper Orange Resourcing into ORANGE (252, XP3, and Live a Better Story) curriculum and resources, giving it specific context connections to our Salvationist doctrine, practice, mission, and heritage. We're working to make access to this as easy as possible. Watch for more info!

@the READY! FRAMEWORK

IMPLEMENTING THE

We know... that's a lot of information to take in. But we also know how important it is for leaders like you to start off right—with an understanding of what's available to you, why ORANGE takes a different approach than you might be used to, and how you can intentionally use tools beyond your small group lesson to help the kids and teens in your ministry to practice living they faith in tangible ways.

We know you'll have questions about some of what we've covered here, and about things you'll find that we haven't even begun to share with you yet, as you begin on your journey of implementing @theREADY and integrating ORANGE into your discipleship strategy. We want you to know:

You're not alone.

We're in this with you.

And so is the ORANGE team.

In addition to your DYS and the Canada Bermuda Youth team, you'll have direct access to what ORANGE calls, their Orange Specialists:

Here's a few people that can help you:

Kevin Slous
Territorial Director of Discipleship

Jackie Raihl
Orange Specialist for TSA Accounts

Ben Nunes
Orange Director of TSA Strategies