

IMPLEMENTING THE theREADY FRAMEWORK

We appreciate you. We know you're invested helping the next generation become @theREADY—otherwise, you wouldn't have made it this far!

Still unsure of where to begin?

Or how to ensure your programs remain intentional to help people practice being the person God is calling them to be, as they journey along the discipleship process?

Or even what we fully mean when we say we want to work together to make CHRIST-centred, OTHERS-focused disciples?

Contact your DYS to find out how you can learn how to make effective use of our reCalibrate Equalizer tool, designed to help ministry leaders like you evaluate current realities and determine intentional next steps in keeping the call to “Make disciples!” central to everything we do.

As the @theREADY Discipleship Framework continues to evolve, you'll see new resources and initiatives added.

One significant area in development is our reimagining of Corps Cadets for the twenty-first century as CC21c: READY to LEAD...

READY to LEAD will aim to reintegrate the original aims of Corps Cadets—to provide deeper discipleship experiences and leadership development opportunities—to high school students and emerging adults across our territory.

A menu of options will be made available to participants, allowing them to choose specific courses, hands-on ministry initiatives, and experiences that will help them develop further in areas of spiritual formation, knowledge, and ministry skill, preparing them to be READY to LEAD in their corps, their home, and their world.

CC21C: Ready To Lead

CC21C: Ready To Lead

WHAT IS CC21C: READY TO LEAD?
CC21C: READY TO LEAD is a reimagining of Corps Cadets for the 21st century. Reaching back to the original intent of the Corps Cadet program, we want to provide our teens and young adults with opportunities for leadership development and to go deeper in their discipleship experience.

This will look completely different from early models of the program. We've kept the essence but recreated the structure, to better reflect the realities of today, an integrated approach to learning, and the diversities of our cultures.

HOW IS THIS DIFFERENT THAN THE TEEN & YOUNG ADULT CURRICULUM ORANGE WILL PROVIDE?
Orange curriculum will provide a base level of small group discipleship for teens and emerging adults. This will be enhanced by our "deeper orange resourcing" (see Orange Overview). Those who desire even deeper discipleship experiences, or who are identified as potential emerging leaders, will be able to take part in the CC21C: READY TO LEAD initiative—all the while staying actively involved in their local discipleship programming.

WHAT DOES READY TO LEAD LOOK LIKE?
Opportunities for leadership development and deeper discipleship experiences will be contextualized to local and divisional settings, alongside initiatives at the territorial level.

Youth will be able to choose from a uniquely designed "menu of options" that suits their discipleship and leadership development needs. Each menu option will meet a set of core criteria, including aspects of Biblical study, spiritual formation, ministry engagement, mentoring relationships, and accountability. Menu options will have a corresponding "credit value" which will count toward overall completion of the CC21C: READY TO LEAD initiative.

Possible menu options may include: online study and engagement, ministry & mission opportunities, and regional discipleship events or cohort involvement.

Participation in READY TO LEAD is not intended to replace local involvement in discipleship programming; it is designed to enhance it, taking the experience for teens and young adults deeper.
