

Dear older, wiser, sober, and
amazing bigger me,

Well, what a journey it's has been. What can we say.

Are you happy to be alive? Yes. Did you work your butt off? Yes.

Over the last 4 years you have fought a battle that lots of woman in the past have lost. You have your two beautiful children back in your life and they have their mom back. You have friends and family, that you haven't had in such a long time and those relationships are genuine. You built a happy home and safe home and take pride in what you have for yourself. You stand tall with your head held high. You smile and laugh and love freely. And it feels amazing.

If you only knew that life could be this great, I think you would have chosen you a long time ago. But your journey made you who you are today.

Stronger!!!! Never forget where you came from. And never look back. Always move forward.

Have faith. I love you! And He loves you.

Love, ME
