ACCOMPANIST?

The traditional piano accompanist might not be an option in your particular setting. Here are some ideas if you find yourself in that situation:

Have other instruments accompany your singing like guitars or a small brass ensemble.

Use the demo and accompaniment tracks available for most collections.

Sing as an a capella choir. Be sure to choose music that is intended to be sung a capella.

Find a piano instruction book and learn the basics to help lead note-learning in the group.

Encourage developing musicians to come to rehearsal or to accompany simpler selections to give them experience.
