Fundraising Ideas

Each year, ministry units across Canada try new and unique ideas to raise funds for the Partners in Mission campaign. Fun activities can raise money, awareness and can create opportunities to celebrate the accomplishments of groups for the campaign. It also allows for a time of fellowship, recognition and a time to reflect and be thankful for all that we have. When we think about our church family, we must include our brothers and sisters world-wide. We have a responsibility to support them as much as we can.

Here are a few fun ideas you can use for this year's Partners in Mission campaign to help us reach our goal of $2.4 million.

A Pot-Luck with a Twist

Everyone brings a lunch/dinner item and a dessert. At the end of the lunch/dinner, the desserts are auctioned off. There is only dessert if you win one!

His and Hers Jars

Label two jars with one entitled “men” and the other entitled “women.” Place them in the foyer before and after Sunday service, where contributors can place money in their respective jars to raise funds for Partners in Mission. With humorous updates given each week, there’s nothing like friendly competition to get things going!

Worth your Weight in Apples

A wall display features a sunflower field, a delivery truck, a charming windmill, and an area for stacking bags of freshly harvested apples. For every $50 collected, a new bag of apples was cheerfully added to the growing pile, transforming the wall into a vivid representation of fruitful contributions.

A Wrapped Mystery

People are asked to bring one or two wrapped items from home. Some have value and others are hilarious. These gifts are labelled with a hint. For example: a dinner for two, but inside could be two potatoes. These items are auctioned off, usually no more than $10.00

Soup-a-thon

This simple meal shared with fellow members of your ministry unit is a reminder that in developing countries, people have very little and often very simple meals. These soups can be homemade or from a can, served with crackers and water. For everyone who attends, a donation can be made to the campaign.

Bake Sale

Bakers unite! Let people in your ministry unit know well in advance that you're looking for bakers to donate homemade baked goods. Have each baker package and price items before the sale to allow for a quicker set up. Advertise the bake sale to create a buzz with everyone attending your ministry unit. This works well in conjunction with upcoming holidays.

Walk-a-thon

Choose a day that best suits your ministry unit. Use posters, announcements or other creative ways to generate interest in the walk. People can ask their friends, co-workers and family members to sponsor them. Make signs for the walk letting the community know who/what they are walking for. If you would like assistance with the promotional material, please contact the International Development department.

Cake Auction

Organize a simple lunch or dinner and have a fully decorated cake placed as the centre piece. The cakes can be baked and decorated by kids or adults from your church, or by a local bakery who is willing to donate. At the end of the meal, auction off each cake (everyone can participate or just the people sitting at that table) and use that money for Partners in Mission.

Chili Cook-Off

It seems that just about everyone has a family recipe for chili. Use this to your advantage by getting people to share their homemade chili. Participants will prepare their chili in advanced. Host the event during an evening or weekend, or when it is best suited to your ministry unit, and ask people to come to judge each chili. Ask for a donation at the door prior to the taste testing.

Toonie Days

Live on $2 a day for a week to understand the challenges faced by many people in different countries. Here's how: Take half of your biweekly income, keep $14 for the week, and see how far you can stretch it without harming yourself financially or physically. Consider setting aside a significant portion of your remaining income for Partners in Mission. Pray in solidarity with those who must survive on $2 a day for a more meaningful experience.

Rally the Troops

Challenge your corps to support the Partners in Mission Appeal. Ask your leaders what their strategy is to promote the appeal. If there is no visible champion for this, offer to help organize your church's campaign. Over the fundraising period, try to ensure that there is some connection to Partners in Mission each week. If you belong to a small group or corps section, encourage your fellow members to find ways to support the appeal as well

Set Targets

As a corps or small group, set a financial target for the Partners in Mission Appeal. Rather than a small leadership team outlining what they think the target should be, decide as a congregation or a small group what you think is realistic and possible. This will foster ownership and accountability among all members. Post your target in a visible location in the corps building and track your progress. Rather than wait for one Sunday to give, encourage church members to submit their Partners in Mission offerings on a weekly basis.

Fundraise Creatively

Rather than relying solely on personal giving, Salvationists can organize special events to help raise funds for the Partners in Mission Appeal. Plan a walk-a-thon where people can ask their friends, co workers and family members to sponsor them. Organize a bake sale or craft show to raise money. Youth can shovel snow or perform other chores for people in the community.

Commit to Prayer

In addition to making a financial commitment to Partners in Mission, challenge yourself and your corps to pray intentionally for other countries. The more that you learn about the world, and the more you support others in prayer, the greater the connection you will have with our brothers and sisters worldwide. The Canada and Bermuda territory is internationally known for its generosity. Let's continue to show our financial commitment to the Partners in Mission Appeal as we strive to make the world a better place, and together say, "Heart to God, Hand to Man!"
